

Schneeberger GmbH: Conflict Minerals procurement Policy

Schneeberger GmbH supports its business and procurement policies to OECD guidance regarding the application of reasonable care in sourcing of minerals from conflict areas. This is especially true for tin - tantalum, tungsten and gold-containing materials which could come from the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Schneeberger GmbH is active in the areas manufacturer of linear guides and constructed therefrom table / positioning systems, which encompasses the majority of our products , a minimum percentage used only in our AMS-measurement system of electronic components that affected substances could contain. Here are just a few suppliers come into play, which confirm a commitment in the supply chain (their suppliers) , after which no raw materials to be used in conflict regions.

Suppliers of such products must provide information about the origin of tin, tantalum, tungsten or gold -containing products. We focus basically on the conflict minerals questionnaire the ELCC / GeSI, as an element in the implementation of reasonable care in sourcing and in assisting the customers to ensure compliance with legal requirements.

In this sense , we support the concerns and aspirations within the meaning of U.S. Gesetzesder SEC (Securities and Exchange Commission) regarding conflict minerals (Dodd- Frank ActSection 1502 reporting obligation American companies over the use of the substances mentioned .) Moreover, the current situation will be monitored to respond appropriately if the need arises.
